

Greenville's Immedion Doubles Operation, Establishes Data Center in Columbia

February 16, 2010

Immedion, LLC, a South Carolina based dedicated data center and managed services provider is opening a second data center in Columbia, SC. The second site further expands Immedion's redundancy and disaster recover offerings and allows Immedion to better serve the managed hosting needs of more of South Carolina.

Immedion's Columbia site is located in the SCRA USC Innovation Center. The location, with easy access to the Columbia Statehouse, airport and University of South Carolina, is an ideal site. The building is adjacent to the USC Engineering School and is also within walking distance of Innovista, USC's forward-looking campus for research and entrepreneurship.

"Locating our second data center in the Innovation Center will better enable us to provide services to businesses in the Midlands as well as throughout the state of South Carolina. In addition, the provisioning of a second, geographically diverse location will allow Immedion to provide uptime for critical technology beyond the capabilities of any single data center location." Today's announcement "helps expand a knowledge-based company," SCRA chief executive Bill Mahoney said. "Immedion is the kind of company we are looking for."

The Columbia site will offer the same services as the Greenville headquarters with the goal of helping customers meet all of their IT Space, Server Power, Disaster Recovery and Regulatory Compliance demands. Immedion's outsourced data center services and solutions help organizations lower costs, maximize internal resources and keep valuable information technology safe 24x7x365.
